Success Stories

by our PEER SUCCESS GUIDES

I share this story because it was an opportunity for me to help a student while being helped by a student. I am often surprised by the vision, ambition, and clarity displayed by new students. I hear freshmen talk about their plans, aspirations, and goals and I am often bewildered, reflecting on my freshman days and the myopia displayed.

I introduced myself to this student along with all other students and she got back to me quickly. As we spoke, she started sharing her goals, passion to help others, and her self-care routine and tips. The thought crossed my mind that clearly I, the mentor, was being mentored.

She wrote for the school newspaper, so she asked if she could interview me for a piece she had hoped to write on personal habits, experiences, a reflection on how students were and are coping with the pandemic. To summarize, being interviewed challenged me to reflect on my experiences from a different perspective and appreciate the things I have learned, the people I have met, and the growth that I have enjoyed.

I know this is meant to be a story about what I have done for my mentee, but I think just having discussions with mentees and coming out of the encounter having grown really stood out to me.
